HIGH WAVES IN CARIBBEAN HIT ISLAND CITIES

Radio Disruption Blocks Full Report on Damage to Dominican Ports.

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic — (AP) — High waves, set in motion by strong earth tremors which were continuing today, have swept into a number of coastal points of this Caribbean island. The ports of Mataznas, Nagua and Puerto Plata were affected by high waters.

There was no immediate report of any damage due to the waves. The tremors interrupted radio communications with the outside world for hours and interfered with the gathering of information concerning the situation at the stricken ports.

An earthquake apparently centered in the deepest hole in the Atlantic ocean shook the Caribbean area with such intensity Sunday that it knocked out a recording seismograph in St. Louis, more than 2,000 miles away, yet reports from the area hours later mentioned no surface damage.

Deep In Ocean.

Dr. Marion Gilmore of the army and navy's hurricane service in Miami said the heart of the quake was either north or south of Puerto Rico or quite possibly in the Milwaukee depth, 30,246 feet below sea level and 50 miles off the northeast coast of Santa Domingo.

(The United States coast and geodetic survey lists the Milwaukee depth as the deepest point in the Atlantic ocean.)

Dr. Gilmore said that if the earthquake centered under the sea, a tidal wave would possibly result.

Knocks Out Instruments.

The shock was so severe that it put out of commission seismographs at the U. S. naval station in Puerto Rico at 1:49 p. m. (EDT) at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, at 1:43-30 p. m. (EDT), and in Trinidad at 1:53-46 p. m. (EDT).

Pan American Airways' installation at San Juan reported that the shock could be felt for three minutes while the walls shook. A brief power failure occurred in San Juan.

Capt. G. J. Brakesman of Miami, a Pan American pilot who left San Juan shortly after the shock was recorded, said he was driving over a bumpy road to the airport at the time and missed the shock entirely.

He said that when he arrived at the field he found the terminal building had been shaken.

The earthquake was described by a physicist in Cincinnati as "catastrophic." It was recorded as "major" and "very severe" by seismographs in Weston, Mass.; New York; Washington; St. Louis, Cincinnati and Pasadena, Calif.

SELLS CLOTH

Government Releases Goods to Make Cheap Suits.

WASHINGTON —(UP)— The government is turning loose enough surplus cloth to make 1,000,000 men's suits and overcoats within three months. And they'll be bargains, too.

The Reconstruction Finance corporation, in making the announcement, said the garments will sell for less than $30 each, and will be better quality than suits and overcoats now selling in that price field.

The cloth originally was bought for the armed forces. RFC said it will be turned over to small manufacturers. They must agree to use the material only for making men's suits and overcoats. The garments must be completed within three months, and turned over to retailers promptly.

ASK COUNCIL FOR $25,000 HOUSING FUND

Proposal Up For Action at Meeting Tuesday Along With Recreation Levy.

City council will be asked Tuesday night to set up a $25,000 fund to help finance the veterans' housing program in Mansfield and to authorize placing of a half-mill city recreation levy on the ballot in November.

The housing bill would provide funds for installation of 76 temporary apartment units for veterans and their families. The units have already been allocated to the city by the federal government.

W. B. Ford, chairman of the Mansfield Housing authority, which will manage the housing project, said today that "the housing won't cost anywhere near $25,000."

The housing chairman pointed out that the city will be reimbursed for its cash outlay through rentals and through sale of the property when the project is abandoned.

Ford said the $25,000 figure is being established as an "outside bound" in cash such an amount is needed. He said he could give no estimate on the cost to the city of the housing until the federal government completes drawing of plans.

The recreation levy, if voted by council would provide for the setting up of a city department of recreation and the employing of a man and a woman director.

It would allow for the employing of trained recreation supervisors for planned recreation programs in city parks. One of the project's aims is to cut down juvenile delinquency.

It is estimated that a $16,000 fund would be procured through the levy's first year. It is planned to set up the levy for a five-year period, beginning with the 1946 tax year.

PULLS OUT OF MYSTERY DEATH INVESTIGATION

Prosecutor Announces He Is Through With Case, Asks Sheriff Aid Probe.

ASHLAND—C. W. Chorpening, Ashland county prosecutor, said today he was withdrawng from the investigation of the death of Mrs. Kate Semler, 48, whose body was found in a cistern at the rear of her home Friday.

Chorpening said the Ashland county sheriff might be utilized in further investigation of the mysterious circumstances surrounding the death of the Ashland divorcee.

When asked if the sheriff's office would be called in, Chief of Police Harry Smith said it was the first he had heard of it.

Meanwhile police are continuing their search for information that would explain how Mrs. Semler's body, slashed at the neck and wrists, got from the bathroom of her home to the cistern without leaving a trail of blood.

Son Questioned.

They issued no statements regarding the results of questioning Mrs. Semler's son, Robert, 24-year-old war veteran, who found his mother's body in the cistern, and Mrs. Semler's former husband, Howard Semler, of Ashland.

Coroner A. D. Lewis said today he would delay indefinitely his report on the cause of the death in order to permit the police investigation.

Whether Mrs. Semler died by violence or at the hands of others, still has not been determined, Dr. Lewis said.

Private funeral services for Mrs. Semler, were conducted Saturday afternoon. Police who guarded the Denbow-Bear funeral home said no incidents marred the privacy of the service.

BARES THREATS AGAINST BRIGGS

Anger of Farmer's Neighbors After Shooting Revealed By Ashland Deputy.

ASHLAND — A group of neighbors organized and threatened to "take care" of Charles E. Briggs, held in Ashland county jail for the berry patch shooting of Mrs. Roger McKinley last Wednesday it was revealed today. Meanwhile the 62-year-old Lake township farmer continued his efforts to raise $10,000 bond.

Deputy Sheriff William Schindler said that he was told by members of the group the night of the shooting that they would "take matters into their own hands," if he didn't take Briggs to jail.

Prosecutor C. W. Chorpening, who today said that he would call a special session of the grand jury if Briggs was unable to raise bail, said that he thought the neighborhood would "cool down" by the time the $10,000 was found.

Chorpening said that Briggs' case would not come up until the September term of the grand jury if a special session were not called.

Briggs, who was arraigned on a second degree murder charge Saturday, has been in the Ashland county jail since Wednesday.

His wife, Mrs. Dorothy Briggs, made her first call to the jail Friday night, it was disclosed Sunday. She said she was unable to get help to tend the large quantity of livestock, 800 chickens, and do the farm chores.

Meanwhile the three motherless children of Roger McKinley are being cared for by Mr. and Mrs. Ed McKinley, the paternal grandparents.

Family Broken By Lake Erie Tragedy

A Lake Erie tragedy claimed two members of this Mansfield family of four sons yesterday when Kenneth Paul Snively, 14, standing extreme left, and Franklin Gene Snively, 13, third from left, drowned on a day's outing at Otto's Camp near Huron where they were celebrating their father's birthday. The boys, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn J. Snively, 159 Blanche street, are shown in a recent photograph with their two other brothers, Glenn, jr., 16, seated, and Robert C., 11, standing, extreme right. Robert, who does not swim, was in the water at the time of the tragedy, but had remained close to the beach. Glenn attempted in vain to rescue his younger brothers, who were believed to have drowned when Kenneth tried to assist Franklin, who had fallen off an inner tube.

AP Survey Hails Mansfield Finance

Reports City Will Have Surplus While Most Ohio Towns Pant Just Ahead of Bankruptcy.

Compared with other Ohio cities, Mansfield is riding high financially and will end this year with a fat $430,000 surplus when the last bill is stamped "paid."

The city's top-flight financial condition, as compared with other Ohio cities, is revealed in a survey just completed by the Associated Press. The survey is contained in the first of a series of articles by Ken Davis of AP on money problems of the state's cities.

Says the AP:

Many Ohio cities today are panting along just ahead of the hounds of bankruptcy.

Dangling from their civic ankles are leg chains limiting the real estate taxes they may collect and riding their backs are the soaring costs of providing governmental services.

Every now and then, one of them tries sprinting with some new revenue source—like the recently discredited municipal consumers' utilities tax or the still-alive city payroll and income tax—but that is another story, as is the predictable future as seen by the experts.

There is a brighter side of the picture. In the Associated Press survey, nine cities showed balances of revenue over expenditures for 1946. They were Columbus, Marion, Findlay, Sandusky, East Liverpool, Van Wert, Newark, Chillicothe and Mansfield.

SALVAGE PRIZE DISPUTE BREWS

British Forced Off Derelict Freighter By Americans, They Claim.

LONDON —(AP)— The derelict American freighter American Farmer limped toward England today under her own power and in escort of a U.S. destroyer, with the British loudly claiming her as perhaps a $4,500,000 salvage prize.

A maritime legal battle was shaping up in the din of British newspaper headlines which complained American ships had taken over the collision-battered freighter after a midget British vessel had her in tow.

The 8,358 ton American Farmer and the freighter William J. Riddle collided 700 miles west of Lands End Wednesday. A passing ship took off the crew of 50 and six passengers and the British freighter Elizabete of 2,038 tons came alongside, attached towlines and started puffing and heaving away toward Wales. Soon afterwards the U.S. destroyer Perry, the U.S. lines freighter American ranger and a tug arrived. The The Elizabete radioed its home office:

"A crew from the American Ranger boarded the derelict and ordered our crew to leave, hauled down our ensign and hoisted the American flag."

The Farmer carried $2,000,000 worth of wheat and dried eggs for England and London papers estimated the ship was worth $2,500,000 additional.

Brothers Lose Lives at Huron While on Party

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn J. Snively See Sons Sink In Rough Lake Water, Believing They were Wrestling; Double Funeral Rites Set For Tuesday.

A birthday celebration turned into a double tragedy for the Glenn J. Snively family, 159 Blanche street, yesterday when two of the family's four sons, Kenneth Paul, 14, and Franklin Gene, 13, drowned in Lake Erie at Otto's camp, near Huron, while their parents stood on the beach, unaware that they were drowning.

The boys were drowned shortly before noon Sunday when Kenneth, reportedly a good swimmer, went to assist his younger brother who had slipped off an innertube. Their bodies were recovered in eight feet of water at 3 p. m., by coast guardsmen who had been called to the scene.

The boys' parents said the two victims and a younger brother, Robert, 11, had been in swimming about 20 minutes before the tragedy occurred. Robert, who could not swim, remained close to the beach. The eldest son of the family, Glenn, jr., had not gone in the water.

Mr. and Mrs. Snively, who watched from the beach, said they thought the boys were "playing" when, it developed, they were struggling for their lives. The day's outing for the family had been planned in celebration of the father's birthday.

* * *

Lake Was Rough.

The grief-stricken parents said there was a storm coming up over the lake while the boys were swimming and the rough water may have carried them out to deep water and made rescue of the younger boy by his brother more difficult.

It was believed the higher waves had caused Franklin to slip off the inner tube. Glenn, jr., eldest son of the family, attempted in vain to rescue his brothers. The bodies of the victims were found at approximately the location where they disappeared.

Both boys were active in school functions. Kenneth was a member of the Johnny Appleseed Junior high school choir and would have entered Senior high school this fall. Franklin had placed fourth in last week's Soap Box derby as a Class B participant. He would have entered the ninth grade at Johnny Appleseed in the fall.

Kenneth was born Sept. 1, 1931, and Franklin was born July 27, 1933. The Snively family moved to Mansfield five years ago.

Besides their parents and two brothers, the youthful victims are survived by their grandfathers, Harry Snively of Danville, and by Squire M. Fishburn of Mt. Vernon.

The bodies were returned to Mansfield late yesterday and removed to the Wappner funeral home.

Double funeral services will be held for the victims Tuesday. Brief services will be conducted at the Wappner funeral home at 1 p. m., in charge of Rev. C. A. Portz, with additional services at 2:30 p. m. at the Mt. Zion Lutheran church in Knox county. Burial will be in the Mt. Zion church cemetery.

BACK PLAN TO END DEADLOCK

U. S., China Swing Support to British Compromise at Peace Conference.

BULLETIN

PARIS—(AP)—The Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov today rejected the proposed British amendment on voting procedure for the Paris peace conference, asserting it was "calculated to upset the decision of the council of foreign ministers and replace it with a new one."

PARIS—(AP)—The United States and China today threw their support behind a British compromise proposal to solve the deadlock in the Paris peace conference on voting procedure.

The British plan would permit the conference to make recommendations to the foreign ministers of Britain, Russia and the United States on the five peace treaties either by a two-thirds or a simple majority vote.

Secretary of State Byrnes, taking the floor in the rules committee after a long wrangle in which representatives of the smaller powers argued for a rule to permit recommendations by a simple majority, said he had decided it was "the practical thing to do," to support the British suggestion.

Byrnes promised to support in the foreign ministers council any decision voted by two-thirds of the conference.

He said there were 26 questions on which the council was not in agreement—"some of them very important"—and on which members of the council were not bound to vote together in the conference.

If the other members of the council would make the same offer that he had, Byrnes said, "It will be the conference rather than the foreign ministers council which will write the treaties" on the questions on which the council is not in agreement.

He thus sought to answer the argument of the smaller powers that as long as the four principal powers vote together there is little or no possibility of obtaining a two-thirds vote in the conference against any decision of the council.

It was understood that the French and British delegations were ready to go along with the United States in pledging support to the conference's two-thirds majority votes in the council.

Says Rhumba Will Wiggle To 1st Place

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Within ten years, the rhumba will supplant the fox trot in popularity in the United States.

That is the opinion of Bernie Sager, senior judge of the annual Harvest Moon Ball for exhibition dancers, who is attending the Dancing Masters of America convention in Cleveland this week.

"Dance floors become smaller every year, and dances must evolve similarly," Sager claimed "That's where the rhumba comes in—you can dance it in a telephone booth."

Sager, 42, who devised the collegiate shag in 1931, has been in show business for 25 years. He believes that jitterbugging is expressive of the American way of life and "as American as Tennessee mountain music."

Some 400 delegates are attending the convention which will close Saturday.

First Heavy Rain In 24 Days Revives Garden, Corn Crops In Mansfield Area

Nearly Half Inch Falls During Electrical Storm Sunday.

Dried-out lawns, wilting gardens and farm crops in the city area got a nice long, cool drink yesterday from the first heavy rainfall in almost a month.

The tail-end of a storm which struck from the northwest about 5 p. m., soaked the city area with nearly a half inch of rain, reviving growing crops and browned lawns.

The storm was much heavier north and east of Mansfield, and in the Wooster area trees and corn were blown down by the heavy wind.

George B. Ganyard, Richland county extension agent, said today that the rainfall "helped a lot throughout the county." He added that farmers have needed rain for several days.

The area's last heavy rainfall occurred on circus day, July 11, when the Ringling Bros., Barnum and Bailey circus played in the city.

Yesterday's rain also lowered temperatures which reached a high of 87 to a more comfortable 61. Today's mercury reading at noon was 79 degrees, while the weatherman predicted more cooling thundershowers for late today and tomorrow.

Her Husband Is Overseas And She Loves Another

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Still they come—those problems which have to do with GI husbands who break their wives' hearts by falling in love overseas, and wives who find themselves involved with other men while their GI husbands are still away.

Here, for instance, is the story of a girl who married, at 18, a boy two years younger than herself. Far too young and immature to be ready to assume the obligations of a husband, the boy never, she says, provided a home for her, nor would he even hold a job for any length of time. During the year or so she was married to him before he went overseas, leaving her with a young son, she writes, "We were always moving from one place to another, and I always ended by coming back to my mother's home, and she'd keep me. I have never been really happy with him, but he writes me nice letters and says that he is going to make a home for me. I can't believe that he has changed so quick, and will make me happy when he comes home."

And now a veteran, already discharged, comes into the picture, with whom, she says, she was very much in love before he went into service.

"He had asked me to marry him," she goes on to say, "but I was only 16 years of age at that time and my mother wouldn't consent. Now that he is back, I find that I am still in love with him. He tells me he still loves me and will wait for me.

"What I would like to know is, should I wait until my husband comes home and see if he has changed and settled down, or ask him for a divorce and marry the fellow I am in love with? I am of energetic nature, full of life, like good, clean fun, and my husband's idea of a good time is sitting in a beer parlor drinking. Can a wife get a divorce while the husband is in service?

"MRS. E. S."

You say you cannot believe that your husband might really have changed, and that it is now possible that he could settle down to the serious business of making a home for you and your child. But the fact that you write for advice as to whether you should divorce him and marry this other man shows that you are fair enough, and generous enough, to consider giving him a chance to prove that such a change has actually occurred.

And this is what it seems to me you should do. For somehow I have a feeling that you are a girl with a head and a heart that would never feel quite satisfied if you had not given your husband this second chance. Your head—the reasoning part of you—tells you it's only right and fair to make every effort to work out your marriage before you decide to call it off. And your heart—the feeling part of you—is too kind to hurt the man you married if he is genuinely sorry for his former failure as a husband and eager to make amends.

You can get a divorce while he is still in service, yes. But I hope you won't. I hope you will wait until he comes home before taking any irrevocable step, and see if perhaps things don't turn out much better than you think now. If you can save your marriage, and turn it into something worthwhile and happy, you will get a far deeper satisfaction out of that experience than you will by shaking it off and trying something else. War has sobered many irresponsible men. It is not at all impossible it may have done just that to your husband.

* * *

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl of 15, and very much in love with a boy of 17. His boy friend told me that he said he was in love with me, but he was hurt once before and is afraid that if he lets me know of the way he feels, I might change my mind and go out with someone else.

I can't get myself to go out with other boys because of the way I feel toward him. I think he knows how I feel, although I don't chase after him. I would be deeply grateful for any advice you could give me.

"Irish."

If you think this boy knows that you admire him and would like to be good friends with him, then I think the next move is up to him.

It is too bad that people have to get disappointed in others, as you say this boy has been in some girl, but one has to be big enough to realize that just because a few people are unreliable, it doesn't mean that everybody is. For the happy truth is that most people are trustworthy and mean to do the right thing.

When you are young, and have not yet had enough experience to understand this, it is always difficult to believe it. And so, until Time has had an opportunity to prove it, you have to be sporting enough to take another chance on someone else, even though you feel timid about doing so. Life wouldn't be much fun, and you wouldn't be a very courageous person, if, at 17, you shut yourself away from everybody because you were afraid of being hurt. Everybody gets hurt in life, from time to time, but they don't let it make hermits of them.

Perhaps, if you're patient, and always considerate with this boy, he'll finally confide in you and you'll get a chance to tell him some of these things.

For broiled fish at its best, use moderate heat, placing fish about six inches away from the broiler. No extra fat is used with oily fish, but lean fish is rubbed with margarine or bacon drippings before broiling.

PUSHES EFFORTS TO ENLIST MEN

Marine Recruiting Team in City Points Out Value of Service Training.

M/Tech. Sgt. Ray Baumann, in charge of the Marine Recruiting team temporarily stationed in Mansfield, reported today that the team is redoubling its efforts to enlist additional area men into the corps.

Pleased with the success that the team has encountered thus far in Mansfield, Baumann reviewed some of the reasons why area men have taken advantage of enlistment in the corps.

High school students may complete their high school education in the Marine corps and receive a diploma upon graduation.

For those who can qualify there are excellent technical schools available. Many openings exist at the present time in radio, radar, machinist, mechanic, metalsmith, bombardier, navigator and pilot school.

Enlistment may be made directly in aviation for a period of three or four years, with the separation date set by the enlistee.

For those who can pass the physical qualifications the corps offers men between 17 and 26 years of age a chance to travel in the Atlantic or Pacific areas.

Pay rates begin at $75 per month and range upward to $165 for the first pay grade with five per cent added for each three years of service and 50 percent additional for those on flying status.

The team is located in the Post Office building where enlistment headquarters are open each day except Sunday from 8 a. m. to 4:30 p. m., Baumann said.

U. S. Atomic Research to Aid World Fight Against Cancer

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. — (INS) — Scientists anticipated today worldwide distribution by 1948 of America's disease-fighting isotopes and the conquering of cancer within ten years.

Hopes for such developments were raised by the change-over of atomic energy from destroyer to humanitarian with distribution to America's research institutions of its first peacetime by-product, radioactive isotopes.

Dr. E. P. Wigner, research director of Clinton laboratories, Oak Ridge, declared that isotopes should be made available to the world. He expressed hope that this will be accomplished at low cost "within the next couple years."

Wigner's remarks were made in presenting the first isotope unit, carbon 14, to the Barnard Free Skin and Cancer hospital of St. Louis.

The St. Louis hospital paid approximately $400 for the isotope which weighs only about one tenthousandth of an ounce. The institution will throw this slight but potent weight against cancer.

Isotopes can be traced because of their radioactivity through plants or human bodies. This enables scientists to learn more about the cause of disease, thus hastening treatment.

Dr. E. V. Cowdry, research director for the St. Louis hospital, maintained that advances toward the cure of cancer within a decade depend on efforts made to accomplish that objective.

Cowdry declared that "there must go into the fight against cancer the same 'must' spirit that accompanied development of the atom bomb."

He asserted that "we must work 24 hours a day" to wipe out the disease. Cowdry said that defeat in congress of legislation to support the battle against cancer "was a body blow to all of us."

The Clinton Laboratories were opened for the first time to reporters who were shown the intricate process of creating life-saving isotopes from the uranium chain-reacting pile.

The atomic pile was in operation behind thick concrete walls.

Hungary Discards Worthless Pengo

LONDON —(UP)— The wildest inflation spiral in history was reported today to have ended with the abolition by Hungary of the Pengo and introduction of a new gulder as the country's monetary unit.

Dispatches from Hungary indicated Hungary's monetary reform had started successfully. Its pengo has become meaningless and worthless as the designations ran into millions, billions and trillions. The gulder was pegged officially at 11.62 per United States dollar.

JACK LAIT . . .

MEET LUKE THE MEEK—We have been reading about various workers who look to gratuities (by way of what we call "tips") for a substantial share of their income. All complain that the manna is thinner than it had been in recent years. So we got to wondering how the ones who depend entirely on the generosity of the hander-outer are faring.

I found Luke the Duke, my favorite pan-handler, who works the east side of a block on Lexington avenue.

"Not so good," said Luke. "I haven't felt the weight of a quarter t'doy—nickels is the standard practice now. A dime comes wit' a flourish like it was gonna put me beyond want for me nach'ral life.

"Pretty cheap, when you re'lize it's the price o' salvation."

"How do you figure that?" I asked.

"He who giveth to the poor lendeth to the Lord . . . So these good Christians blow their bucks in bars, nightclubs, on this and that—an' to the Lord they lend a jit.

"I'm the outlet to delude themself they're not penny-ante pikers as well as Christian slackers. They fumble an' fidget an' come up wit' a coin an' slip it to me an' hurry off. They don' look me in the kisser. They haven't enough moxie to say, 'Sorry—that's all the change I got.'

"They got an expression like a party slippin' a slug in a subway turnstile.

"I feel like chuckin' it right back in their puss.

"During the happy days o' the recent unpleasantness, GIs an' gobs useta mitt me half a buck, even foldin' dough. An' wit' a smile. T'day the pickin's is picayune. If I didn't have cert'n commitments, I wouldn' put out me palm for such chickenfeed. I'm a eleemosynary essential, not no economic parasite.

"I got a notion to strike. What do you think'd happen if all of us struck? How would these here pikers go t'rough the motions o' doin' their sacred duties, as well as gratifyin' their complexes?

"Dat's how them chiselers lend to the Lord. An' when I say lend, I mean nothin' else. I mean, I hope to pay it all back some day."

"Pay it back?" I asked. "When?"

"When the meek inherit the earth," sighed Luke the Duke.

WESTBROOK PEGLER . . .

NEW YORK — I finally got around to an interview with Charles G. Bolte, the chairman of the American Veterans' Committee, Inc., Gilbert Harrison, the vice chairman, and Edward McHale, the national field secretary.

The results should interest not only veterans, shopping around for something to join, but other citizens and particularly editors who may have heard rumors that this is a Communist front. I don't believe that, except to the extent that the AVC and the Communists have some common objectives, such as the severance of relations with Spain and economic "sanctions" against her.

In the diplomatic and ideological gullah, this means a boycott. But they do admit they have trouble in their happy midst and they don't bar Communists, although believers in Fascism and Nazism, of course, are devils.

* * *

Bolte said there was no way to keep Communists out and that he would defend their civil liberties, meaning the right to preach their stuff, short of inciting violence. When a fellow tells me that I always wonder why he won't also defend a Nazi's right to preach his obsession.

* * *

And I mean hatred, too, because the Commies preach class hatred and it is no more fun to be shipped to Siberia or massacred in pogroms because you believe in capitalism, as happened in Russia, than to languish in Buchenwald or die in a gas chamber because you are a Jew.

All of this I am against, but it seems to me that they discriminate. They said you have to be very, very careful because if you call a Red a Red, he will call you a Red-baiter and accuse you of using Pegler tactics.

Then they said—this was a fairly general conversation in Bolte's office—they said that, in their code, civil liberties cease to be a protection when a person incites violence. I leave you to unravel that one because all our proscriptions against Communists are based on the fact that they advocate the destruction of our government by force.

I recalled a half page ad on the back of the July 1 number of the AVC Bulletin which red "AVC Needs 1,000,000 Members," and a picture of Helen Hayes handing over her check "opening a drive to collect $1,000,000," and asked Bolte for a list of those who had contributed thus far. These gifts, incidentally, are tax-deductable so all of us, eventually, are nicked.

He said nothing doing because rich people didn't like to have such donations publicized. Then he said, of course, any member could demand the list and get it and that seemed to make the secrecy look silly. We all know that there are veterans around who would join up just to learn who is backing such propositions as immediate resumption of food rationing here to permit of famine relief in other lands, loans of our taxes to "war damaged Allied countries," including Russia, and bad blood again with Spain, because Franco is a dictator but Stalin isn't.

Then I pulled out a list and asked him if it was authentic. He took a look at it and said it must have been filched out of their own office because it was in their own typing and it certainly was correct. I couldn't give him any help on that because I don't know how it fell into the hands of the man who gave it to me.

This list contained such Hollywood names as Edward G. Robinson, Dudley Nichols and Mathew Fox, of Universal, and reported big bites from the Albert Lasker Foundation, $2,000; Lillian Smith, who wrote a book and a play about negroes called "Strange Fruit", $4,000; Frances L. Brody, $2,000; Marshall Field, $2,000; the Field Foundation, $500, and Marshall Field, jr., his kid, $500.

I had to smile when I asked Bolte what he thought of the American veterans of World War II, known as Amvets, and he said they were not rivals at all. I had in my pocket a photostat of a letter from an observer at the Amvets convention in Cleveland last October which warned the AVC that "this group is going places" and said: 'It is time that you, in New York, get busy, raise at least 100,000 bucks, throw self-interest to the winds, send organizers with money into every community to pick out the liberal element to get them organized.

This is the time to be afraid, to tremble, that we cannot get the common man into the AVC because Amvets will get him sure. Call on the NMU (National Maritime Union which follows the same line as the TWU and the UOPWA) the hell with politics. Get every union in the country. Fergodsakes do something."

HAL BOYLE . . .

By JAMES DEVLIN
(For Hal Boyle)

ESSEN —(AP)— Housing is second only to food as a problem to miners and their families living four to eight in a room in the Ruhr, Europe's greatest coal producing area.

In Essen, miners' homes clustered around near the Krupp Steel works suffered an average of four bomb hits each.

The British-operated North German Control commission is trying to improve the conditions of miners charged with the task of producing coal for Europe, but is handicapped by a lack of materials and labor.

Figures produced by the Bergwerke-Essen group of four mines show that of 4,454 homes occupied by its workmen 62.5 percent were totally destroyed, 27.3 percent heavily damaged, 4.4 percent suffered medium and 5.8 slight damage.

"These figures don't account for any houses that weren't damaged," a correspondent suggested to Gerhard Rauschenbach, mine manager. He smiled.

"There weren't any," he said.

Most heavily hit were houses near Salzer-Amalie mine, one of the Bergwerke-Esson group, of its 1,608 homes, 81 percent were destroyed totally.

One of Rauschenbach's charts, kept from early days of the war for German's own information, showed that one group of 2,500 houses was hit 10,000 times or an average of four each, up to the end of 1944 when the figures reached the end of the sheet.

A number of miner's families, bombed out of one house, doubled up with somebody else, only to be bombed out again, losing part of their furniture and belongings each time.

Now an Essen miner living with his family in one room of a basement is considered "average."

In the early days of the bombings, strenuous efforts were made to repair the damage, but such work slackened as the raids increased in number and intensity.

In like manner, Rauschenbach's charts indicated that production halted only briefly after the first raids. The line of slump and restoration of output resembled a narrow "V." But as the raids continued, the upswing line leaned further to the right and didn't climb back to its former height.

Firing Matches At Camp Perry Revive

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Brig. Gen. Sidney R. Hinds was designated by the War department today to direct the firing of the national rifle and pistol championships at Camp Perry, Ohio, August 31. The event is being revived after a four-year wartime lapse.

Hinds, veteran of nine wartime campaigns in the Mediterranean and Europe, was named executive officer. His home is Washington, D. C. Col Harland C. Girwold, longtime professor of military science and tactics at the University of Maryland, was named range director and director of the small arms training school.

BURGLARS FAIL TO OPEN SAFE AT FARM STORE

Smash Combination at Myers Supply; Police Report Busy Weekend.

It was another busy weekend for city police, who made an arrest an hour during one 24-hour period and were called out to investigate an attempted safe-cracking job at farm supply store.

Officers said that burglars attempted to smash open a safe at the Myers Farm Supply company, 184 North Diamond street, but failed.

They tried to pry open a barred door in one unsuccessful attempt to enter the place and then smashed two windows in order to get inside, police said.

Burglars gave up efforts to open the safe after drilling three holes in it and knocking its combination off. They left a sledge hammer and a drift pin behind, officers said.

Make 25 Arrests.

From 7 a. m. Saturday until 7 a. m. Sunday police made 25 arrests. Of the total, 18 were on intoxication charges, two on charges of assault and battery, one for disorderly conduct and four on traffic violations.

In addition, police investigated reports concerning five prowlers, a missing boy and a missing woman, a boy bitten by a dog, dogs barking, and four reports that loud talking and "screaming babies" were keeping neighbors awake

On top of these came reports of an intoxicated man wielding a double-barreled shotgun, a lost tire, found clothing, a stolen bicycle, a broken window and a "man beating his family."

One of the assault and battery charges followed a fight in which a North Main street man said he was hit in the face with a beer bottle by another Mansfield man at a North Main street cafe.

Routzon To Conduct Business Legislation Survey In City

John G. Routzon, secretary-manager of the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce, today was named to conduct a survey of the federal and state legislative needs of the Mansfield area as they affect the small businessman.

Routzon was appointed by State Senator C. Stanley Mechem, chairman of the Ohio Small Business commission.

A report of the findings here and elsewhere in Ohio will be given to the commission at its next session Aug. 22 in Columbus.

The survey, according to Routzon, is an outgrowth of a state Small Businessman's committee, appointed by the governor two years ago, which surveyed the state last summer.

Mansfield, which was designated as one area in the survey, was host to eight senators and representatives who heard from local businessmen in an open forum in the Chamber of Commerce assembly rooms.

The commission was formed by the state legislature to discover what is happening to small business and to study businessmen's reactions to federal and state legislation. It is empowered to recommend legislation to the next regular session of the Ohio General Assembly and may advise federal agencies on all matters that affect Ohio businessmen.

Businessmen in the Mansfield area were asked to give Routzon their views on legislation as it affects business so he can get a cross-section of the community's needs and reactions to legislation already voted.

Members of the commission, besides Senator Mechem, are Senators Emil A. Bartunek, of Cleveland; Virgil E. Cramer, of Toledo; Orval E. Whitacre, of Minerva; and President Pro Tem Frank E Whittemore, of Akron. The house members are Ray M. White, of Millersburg, Speaker of the House Jackson E. Betts, of Findlay; Everett C. Hale, of Burton; Frank J. Pokorny, of Cleveland; and Ralph A. Siferd, of Wapakoneta.

Those appointed by the governor are John W. Bush, of Portsmouth; Fred W. Danner, of Akron; L. A. Kauffman, of Columbus; O. E. M. Keller, of Toledo; and Warren J. Parisi, of Hamilton. John B. Conklin, secretary of the Ohio Hardware association, is executive secretary and Will Henderson is technical adviser.

Sanitarium Surgery Room Authorized By CPA.

Among 33 non-housing projects approved last week by the Civilian Production Administration for the Northern Ohio area was a $5,000 surgery room for the Mansfield Sanitarium Hospital.

The new room will give the sanitarium complete surgery facilities, according to Supt. T. E. Sauder. Construction of the addition is expected to start in a "couple of weeks", he said.

The project was the only one sanctioned last week by the CPA for the Mansfield area. Eleven applications for other northern Ohio non-housing projects, totaling $200,000, were denied, according to the CPA.

PLENTY OF CHOW—

Members of Co. M, Ohio State guard, returned to Mansfield yesterday filled with more than praise for S/Sgt. H. R. "Pat" Barnes. "Pat" was battalion mess sergeant during last week's training at Camp Perry. Handicapped during the first couple of days because of an inadequate supply, "Pat" and his men really dished out the "chow" after company officers provided some money from company funds. Only one injury was reported among Co. M men during the entire week and this happened when one of the men cut his leg on a bunk the second night out.

Before noon today the group was pretty well settled, with the children divided into seven different Indian tribes. One "tribe" even went so far as to cut its collective hair so that only a scalplock remains upright on close-cropped heads. Permission to use the camp for a week was granted by the Johnny Appleseed area council, B. S. A.

GOVERNOR TO CALL ASSEMBLY FOR 4TH TIME

Special Session Might Also Study State Salaries, Tax Revenues.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — A fourth special session of the 96th general assembly, to make possible an increase in the maximum Ohio old age pension from $40 to $50 a month, was being arranged by Governor Lausche today.

Lausche was contacting legislative leaders by telephone in planning the session. Although no date has yet been fixed, it was believed it would not be called before Aug. 29.

Wants Commissions.

The governor said also he was "giving consideration" to asking legislators to create two commissions. One would study state salaries for the 1947-48 biennium, the other tax revenues and their distribution throughout the state.

"The present total taxes collected in the state are adequate and ample to finance all governmental units on a reasonable basis," the governor said. "A plan should be adopted to insure an equatable allocation of revenues.

"The state probably should step out of some tax fields and permit them to be entered by the local governments if they so desire."

Although the state has a surplus in excess of 125 million dollars, some communities, including Columbus and Youngstown, are considering payroll taxes similar to that in effect in Toledo. The taxes are made necessary by the supreme court's recent invalidation of the cities' taxes on utility bills.

An increase in old age pensions is made possible by congressional action, increasing the federal government's one-half share of the pensions from $20 to $25 a month.

State legislative action is necessary because the present state law fixes the total maximum income of a pensioner, including his pension and any private income at $480 a year, or $40 a month.

Governor Lausche would increase this maximum to $600 a year, or $50 a month.

The governor previously indicated the new law should be worded that the maximum pensions should be twice the amount of a maximum federal grant, thus making future special legislative sessions unnecessary.

Lausche revealed he had wired Friday for a copy of the federal law which congress passed just before it adjourned. Any definite action will await study of the bill, which he expected to receive today.

As to the salary study commission, the last legislature failed to act on a report of a 1943-45 legislative committee.

MARKET DULL, PRICES MAKE FEW CHANGES

Wall Street Cautious While Awaiting National, World Political Developments.

NEW YORK — (CP) — Stock prices moved narrowly today around Friday's closing level.

Dullness reflected Wall street's desire to keep a sideline position pending developments abroad at the peace conference and here at home as members of congress start their campaigning, following adjournment of the 79th congress.

Few of the leaders moved outside a narrow range but those that did included Allied Chemical, down 2, Bethlehem Steel and General Motors, down a point each, and Pennsylvania railroad, down 1¼.

Fractional improvement was noted for Lockheed, Goodyear, Douglas, American Tobacco B, Union Pacific, Public Service of New Jersey, Sears Roebuck, North American Co., and American Telephone.

Kennecott Copper, Erie, Chrysler, Republic Steel, N. Y. Central, and Montgomery Ward were easier.

Hughes-Keenan Veteran Likes His Work and Fishing Trips

E. J. Peterson's Been On Job At Plant For 27 Years.

By GEORGE SATTLER

A sheet metal foreman at Hughes-Keenan, Edward J. Peterson, 57, says he can take his fishing or let it alone—but his work, well, that's a different matter.

"People think you're a bit off the beam if you say you like to work," Peterson said. "But in my opinion that is the only way any man can really enjoy life."

Peterson, a sheet metal worker for 45 years, is Hughes-Keenan's oldest employe from point of service. He has been with the company for more than 27 years.

"But don't get me wrong," Peterson said with a grin. "I like fun as well as the next guy. Next to working, I'll take fishing any day."

Looking back over the years, Peterson is amazed at the advances made in his field.

* * *

WATCHED GROWTH OF MACHINE INDUSTRY

"I've seen some remarkable changes over the years," he said. "For instance in my day there was no such thing as spot welding or arch welding. Work now done by welding in a few minutes used to take hours."

Peterson can remember the time when the only way to join two pieces of metal was to pin it together with rivets.

"When I was a kid, I tried other types of work, but I never found anything I liked better than the job I'm doing today," he said.

Peterson, who lives in Shiloh, was born in Jamestown, N. Y., and learned his trade there. He came to Mansfield after World War I to work for Hughes-Keenan at the Shiloh branch of the company.

Edward J. Peterson . . . on job 27 years.

Looking back over his life Peterson said, "In all honesty, if I had my life to live over again I would still be a sheet metal worker."

A family man, Peterson has one son. During the first world war, he served with the 87th Division overseas. He is a member of the McVey post, American Legion.

Next to fishing, he likes gardening. Although he lives only a short jaunt from the Black Fork, he admits that he hasn't been fishing yet this year.

"I've been just a little bit too busy to get there," Peterson grinned.

CHARGED WITH WINE SMUGGLING

Mansfield Man Accused of Taking Liquor to Inmate of Reformatory.

Charged with conveying a bottle of wine to a Mansfield reformatory inmate, G. W. Riggleman, 51, Mansfield, R. D. 2, today pleaded innocent in municipal court and was released under $1,000 bond. His case was set for hearing Thursday.

Riggleman was arrested Saturday evening on an affidavit signed by Supt. Arthur L. Glattke of the reformatory. He was accused of giving the wine to Fred Little.

Little was discovered with the wine last Tuesday evening, Glattke said.

Little was a trusty in the institution's greenhouse and the affidavit charges Riggleman with making a deal with the prisoner to exchange some tomato plants for candy bars and the bottle of wine.

CRIME DOESN'T PAY IN SHELBY, RECORDS SHOW

Thieves Get Only $5 During the Month of July, Police Reveal.

SHELBY—Thieves in this city received a net gain of only $5 for their efforts during the month of July, the monthly police report released today showed.

The value of property stolen last month totaled $5 as compared with $556 for the month of June.

Police found 59 doors unlocked and six windows opened in downtown business places on their regular beats during the past month, but there was only one case of petty larceny and none of grand larceny.

Topping the list of causes of arrests was intoxication. Seven persons were brought into the city jail who were intoxicated. Five cases of disorderly conduct were investigated by police.

Traffic accidents remained at the same low of six reported for June, the report revealed.

Augenstein-Somerville Vows Said In Galion Church Sunday

GALION — One of the prettiest weddings of the season and one of most interest to the congregation of First Methodist church was the marriage Sunday of Deloris Jean Augenstein, daughter of Mrs. B. F. Muth, and Dwight W. Somerville, son of the church pastor, Rev. Norman R. Somerville, and Mrs. Somerville.

Open church was observed. Rev. Somerville read the double ring ceremony at 3 o'clock. An impressive setting was provided with beauty baskets and smaller baskets holding white gladioli and pastel-colored flowers. The altar was banked with palms. Two seven-branch candelabra held lighted tapers. A low bowl of lilies was on the Communion table.

Guests were ushered to their places by Norman Crewson, of Alliance, cousin of the bridegroom; Earl Beck, of Ceveland; William Felter, of Shelby, brother-in-law of the bride; and Clarence Muth, brother of the bride.

Wedding music was provided by Dorothy Plack, organist, and Ruth Ulmer, vocalist.

At the close of the nuptial service, the bridegroom's uncle, Rev. Gladstone Brown, of Boston, offered prayer.

A gown of white imported lace over heavy taffeta was worn by the bride who was given in marriage by her step-father, B. F. Muth.

The bridal party included Mrs. William Felter, of Shelby, matron of honor and sister of the bride; Mary Ann Muth, junior bridesmaid and sister of the bride, and Ruth Ann Nesbitt, of Minerva, flower girl and cousin of the bridegroom.

Ronald Somerville, of Galion, was his brother's best man.

Between 75 and 100 guests were present for the reception in the church parlors. Two close friends of the bride, Jean Plack, and Doris Somerville, sister of the bridegroom, assisted in serving refreshments.

When the couple left on a honeymoon trip that will take them to New Jersey, New York City, and north to Canada, for three weeks, Mrs. Somerville was wearing a moss green dressmaker suit with white accessories and orchid corsage.

The couple will live in Shelby where Mr. Somerville is a teacher and band instructor. He was graduated from Muskingum college where he was president of the Album club and active in musical circles.

The former Miss Augenstein was graduated from Galion high school in 1941 and has been head bookkeeper at the First National bank, here, for several years. She has accepted a position as bookkeeper in the Citizens Bank in Shelby.

BIG PUMPS

Devices For Grand Coulee to Be World's Largest.

GRAND COULEE, Wash.—(U.P.)—Six water pumps—the most powerful and largest ever built—are planned to be installed to pour out a life-giving stream over 400,000 acres of sagebrush and dry-farmed land in south-central Washington.

As work is rushed on Grand Coulee Dam's irrigation system, two California firms have begun manufacture of the pumps, a job they bid on jointly. Costing $1,062,975, the giants will be built by the Pelton Water Wheel Co. of San Francisco and the Byron Jackson Pump Co. of Los Angeles.

AP SURVEY HAILS CITY'S GOOD FINANCES

Finds Mansfield Outstanding In Check of Ohio Budgets, Debts.

$431,226 surplus over its 1946 operating expenditures. Furthermore, its bonded indebtedness is almost unbelievably low — $142,000, for which it needs $36,297 this year.

In the main, too many cities need too much money they don't have to be able to deal with individual cases exhaustively. Only by tracing the reasons for the current situations is some sort of generality possible.

Just what is the Ohio municipal financial picture?

The Associated Press survey disclosed that of 19 cities, eight face operating deficits in 1946, as follows:

Dayton $25,096.42; Cincinnati $2,146,536; Cleveland $500,000; Lancaster $13,151.75; Portsmouth $25,972.05; Zanesville $76,082.75; Youngstown $354,770, and Toledo $1,799,219.

In addition, Canton is breaking even because of a balance of $117,790 at the beginning of the year.

The Cincinnati deficit, also, will be cared for by unexpended general funds, but the wise fathers of the Ohio river metropolis estimate that the last of the unexpended money will be absorbed in 1947, leaving a deficit of $1,747,043 for which there is no handy cushion.

There are other cties, of course, not listed here, which are wearing out the bottom of their civic pockets scratching for money. Take Steubenville:

"It is high time that all of us look the facts squarely in the face and recognize that our city simply cannot go forward until means of providing adequate finances for our many needs are found," Mayor George W. Floto frankly told the Steubenville city council in April.

* * *

Excessive Debts.

City officials throughout the state echo those sentiments in their own words.

During the war, when lack of manpower and materials made it easy for cities to decide not to repair and maintain their civic plants, practically all cities were able to reduce their bonded indebtedness.

But, several still are plenty in the red.

A classic example is Portsmouth, where the annual operating budget calls for about $357,000 in round figures. Its bonded indebtedness, however, is written in even rounder figures —$3,363,950.

That means in 1946 the city will need for its debt obligations a total of $360,946.49, some thousands more than it needed to operate the city's current schedule of services.

Many Ohio cities are carrying excessive debts. Here is a list of a number of Ohio cities, their budget for 1946 operating expenditures and the amount in addition they will need this year to carry their debts:

Lancaster, $191,151.75, $33,912.75; Zanesville, $655,183.75, $89,949.90; Youngstown $2,276,069, $1,044,933; Canton, $1,379,143, $479,028; Columbus, $3,703,647.60, $2,739,956.42; Wilmington, $94,557.34, $11,340; Marion, $291,510, $49,440; Findlay, $584,000; $46,000;

Sandusky, $320,000, $87,914; East Liverpool, $573,237.72, $98,988.38; Van Wert $185,314; $13,450; Newark, $645,670, $81,555; Chillicothe, $536,000, $75,615.75; Mansfield, $1,000,000, $36,297; Cincinnati, $13,599,461, $2,866,500, and Cleveland, $22,883,997, $6,804,555.

MAY GOES HOME

Doctors Fail to Agree Over Congressman's Illness.

WASHINGTON — (UP) — Physicians for Rep. Andrew J. May, (D., Ky.) today were reported in dispute over condition of the 71-year-old congressman under subpena to testify before the senate war investigating committee.

May has gone quietly to his home in Prestonburg, Ky., where his family physician, Dr. John Archer, reported his condition may be called "critical." Washington physicians, however, were understood to feel that May was recovering normally and probably would be able to testify before the committee before long.

Key Figures In Tennessee Town Torn By Election Riot

As peace returned to strife-torn Athens, Tenn., following the election primary battle between veterans and special deputies, the voters had chosen gas station owner Knox Henry (right), a veteran of North Africa, as their new sheriff. His election overthrew the 10-year regime of a dominant office-holding faction. Shortly after the violence, about four hundred persons, assembled in the county courtroom, selected a committee of three to "set up an organization" for the preservation of law. Among the trio was the Rev. Bernie Hampton, pastor of the Methodist church in Athens, who is shown at right atop an overturned car as he asked crowds to "return to your homes."

STREET JOBS, FIRE PROJECTS DUE FOR ACTION

Council to Consider Paving of 3 Thoroughfares, Expanding Alarm System.

Legislation providing major improvements to the Mansfield fire alarm system and to pave three streets will be up for council's consideration tomorrow night.

Major item in the alarm system improvement program is moving the fire department's signal "heart" into new, expanded quarters. An $8,000 fund is being proposed for the work.

Two other bills would authorize a $22,575 fund for an underground electrical conduit from Wood street and Glessner avenue to Marion avenue and Woodhill road and for the purchase of 45 new fire alarm boxes.

The proposal calls for moving the central control room of the fire alarm system from the basement of the city building to the top floor.

Three streets which will be paved if council adopts proposed legislation include Glenn avenue and Abbefeale and Saxton roads, while other legislation authorizes the grading of Fourth avenue.

Some Object.

However, petitions from persons owning the majority of property on Abbefeale and Saxton roads will be read, asking that the proposed paving be postponed.

Another petition, requesting the paving of Poplar street from Ohio street to Sloan avenue, will also be read.

The Glenn avenue legislation provides for paving from Park avenue east to East Third street, while the Fourth avenue grading bill authorizes work from Orange street to Ashland road.

Other bills authorize the renting of a pump and motor for the Brooker well, the drilling of a new well in the Clear Fork valley and the transfer of Treisch well equipment.

A resolution to repair the city building's roof will also be considered.

Trieste Racketeers Are Selling UNRRA Supplies.

LONDON —(INS)— The London Evening Standard reported today that racketeers at Trieste were plundering UNRRA's stockpile of food, clothing and medical supplies in the "biggest rake-off of all time."

The dispatch said the thieves were selling the stolen goods at "sky-high prices" on the black market.

UNRRA Director-General F. H. LaGuardia previously had declared that the agency's relief supplies were feeding the black-market at Trieste. Lt. Gen. Sir William Morgan, British commander in the Mediterranean area, described LaGuardia's charges as unfounded.

Nickel air mail postage is promised after October 1—but what about return of the two-cent rate for local delivery?

As one fond—but sometimes annoyed—father puts it: "The worst thing about growing old is to have to listen to advice from one's children."

Two hundred colleges and universities have agreed not to pay salaries to their amateur athletes—apparently just catching up on the meaning of that word, "amateur."

Dependence Placed On High Taxes

ECONOMY, plus "a boom-time flood of tax collections," is expected by President Truman to result in a considerable reduction of the previously anticipated federal deficit for the current fiscal year.

Unless there is repetition of paralyzing strikes which impede industrial production, retard distribution of manufactured products and cut down on incomes subject to taxation, there is every likelihood of tax collections reaching a new peace-time high this year.

In the matter of economy in government operations, however, the prospect is not so bright, as the whole trend of federal government in recent years has been toward increase of expenditures rather than entering upon any really effective economy program.

While the president promises to "keep trying throughout the fiscal year to reduce expenditures whenever and wherever they can be reduced without harm to our security and the general welfare," the record to date has not been encouraging, and the freedom with which billions of dollars have been disposed of since 1933 gives little hope of an abrupt shift to substantial reductions in expenditures of various agencies which have become such serious drains on American taxpayers.

Fear of inflation is still strongly in President Truman's mind, and in connection with reduction in expenditures, he advises that federal, state and local governments "keep taxes at a high level"—which seems inescapable in any event.

With the federal deficit now placed at $268,600,000,000 (billions, that is) it is proposed to pare this down by about seven billions within another year by using some of the treasury's cash balance, which seems to entail more of a bookkeeping job than an actual debt reduction.

Meanwhile there is considerable talk about "another war," with appearance of slight regard for the fact that several generations will be required to pay the money costs of the one recently ended.

Anniversary of Coast Guard Founding

YESTERDAY marked a birthday anniversary for the United States Coast Guard—the 156th this time, as August 4, 1790, was the date of its founding. In all those years of service the Coast Guard has moved from one strange job to another.

During the war the Coast Guard performed such various tasks as supervising the loading of explosives, hunting for Jap subs, landing troops in all the great invasion operations, and fishing pilots out of the English channel. In the Pacific its harbor firetugs, far from home, stood by for port security. Its buoy tenders wandered practically all over the world marking safe courses for American ships.

One of the most modern icebreakers in the world spends a hectic fall and spring on the Great Lakes breaking loose freighters and ferry boats which get stuck fast in the ice, clearing channels for the commerce of the lakes. Air-sea rescue units and Coast Guard helicopters have performed fantastic stunts from the Gulf of Mexico to Labrador for the sake of rescuing persons who sorely needed it.

In the year ahead the Coast Guard, with personnel and funds cut to a fraction of wartime allocations, but with duties greatly increased from the pre-war list, will doubtless go right ahead performing its odd assortment of jobs in an efficient manner. Whoever thought up the Coast Guard motto, "Always Ready," had the right idea.

Search Reveals An Old Law

WHILE probably not so intended, enforcement of that old Ohio law forbidding sale of intoxicants within two miles of a state or county agricultural fair, might well have the effect of aligning "wets" against holding any more fairs.

It seems that the WCTU has resurrected a forgotten statute of pre-prohibition days which prescribes such a restriction—a harking back to the old saloon days when at least a few farmers took advantage of the county fair trip to town to take a few more drinks than they could handle—sometimes even to the extent of forgetting where they had hitched their horse and buggy.

So it was deemed quite proper, by legislators of those days, to protect county fair visitors against any such temptation by passing a law to close the saloons on county fair days—but there is no recollection of its enforcement—as policemen may never have been told about it.

There seems even less likelihood of its enforcement now than then—as ideas along that line appear to have changed considerably in the meantime.

How Not To Get a New Car Quickly

SLOW DELIVERY of new automobiles has resulted in some anxious would-be purchasers placing orders with several dealers, planning to take the first car offered and then cancelling the other orders.

This practice is being frowned upon by dealers and from New York comes word that dealers have started to compare notes, realizing that eventually they may have models and types on hand that will not be salable.

Now they are dropping to the bottom of their lists the names of those who have signed up with more than one dealer with the idea of accepting the first car that becomes available.

THE AUGUST DRIVE

Drew Pearson

Weapons of Peace Never Keep Pace With Those of War; Diplomats Show Boredom.

PARIS—(By Wireless)—It's hot in the galleries of the Palace of Luxembourg. In the top gallery sit hundreds of newsmen—Chinese, Siamese, Greek, Indian, New Zealanders, watching a man speak far below. Newsmen from all over the world watching the peace. It's their peace. What's done here will affect their countries from Baluchistan to Iceland, from Saskatchewan to Samoa, and they are watching.

Far below, under the klieg lights, sits Jimmy Byrnes—patient, polite Jimmy Byrnes—never leaving his seat, never failing to listen . . . A man speaks into the microphone. He's interpreting Molotov . . .in French. Another man speaks. He's interpreting Molotov in English. . . . It takes hours. When, you wonder, will diplomacy ever become modernized? Fifteen years ago the Pan American Union adopted earphones and simultaneous translation. Delegates could pick up an earphone and get a speech translated simultaneously in English, French, Spanish, Portuguese, with no waste of time. . . . But the French don't go in for modernization. Diplomacy is just the same—it hasn't been changed since 1815 . . . The Vienna conference when the Great Powers divided up Europe and brought on more wars.

Paris today is depressingly the same. We invent modern methods of warfare. . . . Rockets that may reach the moon, atomic bombs that sink navies, germs that can destroy civilizations . . . but the weapons of peace never keep pace with the weapons of war . . . nor do the diplomats who wield the weapons of peace. The same crowd which failed to head off the last war is here again—even some of the same crowd which sat in at the last Paris peace conference. . . . Look at their faces. Poker faces. No life, no lift, no passion for the peace they are negotiating, bored faces, preoccupied faces, bored with the endless translations. Bored with the whole boredom of diplomacy.

Not a man among them who lost an arm or a leg, who knows what it is to suffer on the battlefield. These are the men who are writing the peace.

Jimmy Byrnes is not bored. Polite, patient, precise Jimmy Byrnes sits on the front row—perhaps he is too polite, too patient. . . . You feel like shouting down at Jimmy. You wish you had a telephone to reach him there, way down below. You wish you could tell him:

"That was a great speech you made the other day, Jimmy, but finish it. Tell them the rest of the story. Tell them not only that the United States isn't going to remain isolated but that we're going to raise hell with anyone who blocks our path to peace. Tell them that millions of Americans are fed up with all this frittering; that millions of Americans mean business and will back you up in anything you do. Tell it to 'em, Jimmy."

But Jimmy seems so far away.

Around the senate chamber of the Palace of Luxembourg are great, gold ornaments. Woodwork carved in ornate shapes, heavily encrusted with gold—remnants of the lush days of the de Medicis. . . . If the French had only been smart. If they had only painted out the gold and substituted white crosses! Then perhaps the bored diplomats sitting below would remember . . . white crosses . . . from Guadalcanal and Stalingrad, from Salerno and New Guinea, from Tobruk and the Rapido, from Normandy and Aachen . . . Close your eyes and you can see them . . . thousands of white crosses. . . . The dead speak:

"We who lie here have nothing left to give.
"To all your praises we are deaf and blind.
"We may not even know if you betray
"The hopes we cherished for mankind."

But the diplomats below don't seem to hear. . . . Men in red plush seats, fastidious men in red plush seats, their nails polished, their cravats carefully tied. They don't seem to hear. They are thinking about procedure and majority votes, vetoes and prestige and whether they will get out in time to take tea with Mrs. Ogden Mills.

One man does hear. He sits opposite Jimmy Byrnes . . . A big, uncouth man, his hair not even parted . . . Evatt of Australia. His cockney accent is uncultured but he dares to speak. He is the only man who comes anywhere near preaching the Sermon on the Mount, who tells the bored men in the red plush seats that they must love their neighbors as themselves . . . Unpleasantly Evatt steps on the toes of the big nations, tells them they have no business sabotaging the peaceful goal of others . . . They don't like Evatt, but they listen. Even patient, polite, Jimmy Brynes doesn't like Evatt. But he listens. . . . Thousands of men under white crosses listen too.

Clement Attlee, prime minister of Britain, speaks the man who performed the miracle of defeating war leader Winston Churchill a modest man, a sincere, earnest man. His bald head shines under the klieg lights. But it is no halo. . . . Some hours before Attlee was haggling with Jimmy Byrnes over the future of Germany—bartering over the peace of the world: wanting to trade off a British policy in Palestine for an American policy in Germany. . . . Clement Attlee, Labor prime minister of England, representing the dreams of millions, bickering over the "hopes we cherished for mankind." Thousands of white crosses, silent crosses, listening crosses. . . . "We have heard men say when we were living that some small dream of good would cost too much. But when the war came we have watched men giving and seen them move the mountains with one touch." . . . Peace, say the bored men in the red plush seats, is too difficult.

If one could only shout to Jimmy Byrnes! If only he weren't so far away. If only he weren't so patient and polite. If he would only get up and be himself.

Can't you see, Jimmy, that peace is slipping through your fingers? . . . Can't you see that, instead of writing a peace, the world is choosing up sides for the next war?

Can't you hear the voices of the men who died on Okinawa and Leyte, at St. Lo and the Belgian bulge? They'll never forgive you, Jimmy, if you let them down. . . . "What can be done we know; but have no fear. If you fail now, we shall not see nor hear." This is the greatest moment of your life, Jimmy. You have been senator, Supreme Court justice, war mobilizer . . . a great record. But if the peace of the world slips through your fingers . . .?

Twenty-seven years ago, at the same place, in the same setting, at the same kind of peace conference, Clemenceau is supposed to have said: "Listen! I can hear the soldiers of 1940 weeping."

Today, I can hear my sisters, sons, and all the sons of millions of mothers who put their hopes in you, Jimmy, I can hear them all over Paris . . . weeping.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Orrin L. Laird qualified for finals in checker tournament at Cedar Point.

Myers Y. Cooper, of Cincinnati, candidate for Republican nomination for governor, visited in Mansfield.

Ten-year-old William Dunn, 187 Sycamore street, was injured when struck by auto near his home.

Barney Ford received letter from friend in Tennessee saying that cub bear was being sent to him as a gift.

Miss Dorothy Dann was hostess at party given for Mrs. Frederick L. Tracy, recent bride.

When W. F. Untiet and family returned to their home on the Park avenue west road they found that a neighbor's dog had killed 128 chickens.

Dave Boone Says:

TRYGVE LIE of U N comes out with a frank confession that it has not succeeded in capturing the imagination of the peoples of the earth, and he seems puzzled. Well, for one thing there is too much publicity over what it will have for a suitable home.

* * *

It would capture the imagination of the peoples of the earth if it would meet in a stable if necessary. An atmosphere of shepherds and a little humility would work wonders, if you ask me.

* * *

It's unfortunate that so much emphasis has been put on big, cosy, de luxe quarters for the delegates to the organization devoted to peace.

* * *

U N has got to capture the imagination of the world and it has got to work or else and it can do it. But it seems to be a little too smug, businesslike and pokey in its present set-up, mood and style. Snap out of it, boys, the peoples of the world are waiting.

One Man's Opinion

—By WALTER KIERNAN

BARGAINING elections for atom bomb workers will be held this month. . . . If a shorter week is proposed we also would like to see some kindly mention of a longer life for all of us.

* * *

The elections were delayed while the war was on. . . . through the courtesy of AFL and CIO grievances against the Japs were permitted to take precedence precedence over local grievances.

* * *

Bargaining begins one year after the atom bomb was dropped on Hiroshima. . . . It is reported that the flare was so brilliant a great light dawned on Bill Green and Phil Murray.

* * *

They didn't know much about nuclear fission . . . But 20 thousand potential new members they could understand.

* * *

Anyway it's a good thing to get the unionization problem settled . . . a jurisdictional strike in the atom bomb industry could be more pulverizing than paralyzing.

People Refusing to Be "Pushed Around."

DENVER, COLO.— Biggest topic of conversation in Denver these days is the so-called police department scandal.

These developments have occurred within a few days' time:

One patrolman has been arrested on a grand jury indictment charging assault to murder in connection with the death of a man who had been brought to headquarters on a drunkenness charge; two other policemen have been suspended and one of them heavily fined after a hearing into the alleged beating up of a man at a Denver baseball game.

Another patrolman was booked on drunkenness charges; still another was indicted on a charge of stealing linen from Denver hospitals; recaptured prisoners testified that some guards aided and abetted their jailbreaks, and the district attorney's office said other policemen might be indicted for perjury in previous hearings, while the grand jury grimly continued probing the entire department.

So it went, or rather, so it still goes.

At first, it might seem just a routine sort of scandal—the sort that crops out every so often in many cities, lasts long enough to lop off a few political and official heads and then dies down.

Actually, however, it is much more than that. It typifies the type of post-war trend noticeable in many American cities today, and the public's reaction to it—also typical—can be summed up in seven words:

People are tired of getting pushed around.

Understand, (I know my libel laws too well for that) I am saying that right now they represent, to the average Denver citizen, the type of official person who can tell him to do something—like "Move along, you"—without giving him a reason why.

And John Q. Ordinary Citizen has had what is known in social circles as a stomach full of that type of treatment. He had to put up with it in unprecedented doses during the war, because he figured the end justified the irritation. But most of the time, deep down inside him, he was pretty doggone sore that somebody was just throwing his weight around—that a lot of people exercising arrogant secret authority weren't doing so much for the war effort as they were their own ego.

He got the move-on-and-don't-question-why business from army officers, from law enforcement people, from bureaucrats and big and little officials. But it was war, so he agreed with Sherman and let it slide.

Now the war's over, and he doesn't push so easily.

In Salt Lake City last week, both public and press jumped on the police department for arresting a soldier on charges of attempting to pilfer an illegal slot machine in a business establishment.

Why were they sore? Because the cops left the utterly illegal machines there—until they were spirited away and unavailable for evidence—and dragged the boy into court.

When the tumult got too loud, they arrested one of the owners of the establishment, but he was released on bail much less than that of the soldier's — and the shouting started again.

I've noted that particular trend all across the country. It's the reassertion of the individual citizen's rights to dignity and decent treatment, and not a rising disrespect for law and order, even though it sometimes sounds that way.

Here in Denver, for instance, the finally-turned wrath of the little man in the street is so great that the cops scarcely dare bawl out a jaywalker for fear the crowds will jeer:

"Aw, go on—drag him into the station and beat him up, why doncha? That's the way you do everybody else."

Timely Editorial

Dramatizing Crime.

Speaking of the wave of crime and lawlessness that follows wars, there is always the question—"how much of this could be prevented if people have sense enough to refuse to dramatize criminal cases.

Take that horrible Heirens case in Chicago, for instance. Why all the dramatization? Why should any set of prosecutors or officials even suggest or listen to proposals about lighter penalties if accused persons come forward with confessions?

From all the information available, we have never seen any evidence to indicate that the person who murdered that little Degnan girl gave the child or the child's parents any opportunity to bargain for leniency. — Hamilton News-Journal.

Brazen Tactics Used By Crump Forces.

MEMPHIS — An election in Memphis under Boss Ed H. Crump is something to see. That is, if you are looking for something different from the usually accepted practice in this stage of our development as a democracy.

It is as much in the atmosphere of subservience to one-man rule, evident in many ways, as in what happens. This is seen in the attitude of election officials as if their whole duty is to Mr. Crump and not to citizens as individuals and voters. The machine is dominant, arrogant and supreme.

The outstanding impression of a stranger on a tour of voting places in the Tennessee primary election for senator, congressman, governor and other offices, was that people here have become so accustomed to this spirit of dominance that it is accepted as normal. They seem no longer able to see how it is different from commonly recognized election rights and practices.

This complacency stood out sharply because it was ruffled a bit by an innovation in this election. For the first time on such a scale, the opposition to the Crump machine had watchers at the polls who had been trained in schools conducted jointly by the CIO and the Clean Election League which opposed the Crump slate.

It was obvious from what happened, and from interviewing election officials here and there when incidents arose, that the machine hirelings just could not understand how these people, these watchers, dared to intrude.

During the day watchers were ejected for a time at a number of polling places and required to stay outside though they were readmitted in most cases when the CIO and Clean Election League got busy with the young lawyer they had retained, Sam D. Rhem, jr. He boldly took his career in his hands to challenge the boss. Mr. Rhem had a busy day and night.

Nor was there much pretense anywhere in the privacy usually accorded the voter under our supposedly secret ballot when he is fulfilling his solemn obligation as a citizen. There are, of course, no voting machines in Shelby county and Memphis for reasons anybody can guess. Nor are there any booths or curtains. All voting was done at little shelves along the walls with a small partition between one place and the next, open to view or over-the-shoulder glances.

And, in most polling places, there was nailed to the wall above this shelf, facing the voter, posters saying in box-car letters "Vote thus" with a cross after it and then below, the names of Crump ticket.

Workers for the Crump ticket stood right at the door of the polling places, with the air of being completely in charge, handing out Crump sample ballots in violation of the law that requires them to stand at least 50 feet away. The whole thing was brazen.

Patrolmen in plain clothes sat inside some polling places in violation of the law, ready to do what ever was necessary to carry out the wishes of their boss, including ejection of watchers.

What goes on in Memphis is important because through this Memphis machine Boss Crump controls the state and also exercises an influence in the nation through some of Tennessee's representatives in congress.

He also has an influence in national conventions of the Democratic party.

Therefore the negation of democracy in this city has its effect far afield.

Virginia Overloaded With State Employes.

WASHINGTON—If there is one candidate in this election year who seems assured of victory, it is Sen. Harry Flood Byrd of Virginia. The senator from Virginia is supreme in his state as the boss of a machine geared to a remarkable perfection.

The Byrd machine is smooth, polite. No uncouth Talmadges intrude on the senator's gentlemanly preserve. Yet it is none the less hard-boiled and efficient.

In the light of all this, it seems a little strange that the senator should so fiercely resent any opposition at all. The rumblings of the PAC and the CIO, which have comparatively little influence in Virginia, make him wrathy. An editorial in the Richmond Times-Dispatch should not go entirely unopposed in the primary, the decisive contest, drew an angry blast from the Winchester Star, which is edited by Harry F. Byrd, jr.

In the senate, Byrd stands for two things. One is states' rights, the great clarion cry of the South. The other is economy.

Not long ago, the Times-Dispatch ran a series of editorials showing that economy might well begin at home in Sen. Byrd's own state, which is so tightly controlled by his own machine.

The figures presented by the Richmond paper were startling to, Virginians who imagined themselves as living in a Jeffersonian paradise with a state government that was a proper debating society for the sons of gentlemen.

Actually, as the figures show, Virginia has by far the greatest number of state employes in proportion to population of any state in the group of the 19 most populous. Ten of these states have actually fewer employes than Virginia with its total in 1942—before the wartime train on manpower—of 16,300. This compared with 13,900 in New Jersey, 12,000 in Missouri, and 14,600 in North Carolina. Yet these states all outrank Virginia in population.

When the figures are stated in terms of the number of employes per individual citizen, they are even more startling. Virginia has one state employe for every 164 citizen: New York has one for every 241 citizens; Pennsylvania, one for every 197; Illinois, 376; Texas, 327; Michigan, 360; Massachusetts, 255. Virginia led them all.

Gov. William M. Tuck of Virginia challenged these figures. He pointed out that Virginia has certain services, such as a state-operated liquor system, which other states do not have. But even with due allowance for these special circumstances, the Virginia figure looked high.

As the Times-Dispatch pointed out, education, health and other services in Virginia are notoriously low. Finally, the paper showed that the cost of the government in Virginia had risen just as fast as the cost of the federal government, and that the number of state jobs had been increasing at a rate three times as high as in the federal government when war activity was excluded.

These figures put Sen. Byrd's clamor for federal economy in quite a different light. They point up one of the startling contrasts in this curious political year.

Treasury analysts recently showed that the federal government spent 365 billions from 1940 through 1945, and took in only 165 billions in taxes. The states took in 58 billions in taxes, and spent only 50 billions. That difference adds up to a lot in politics as well as in money.

Farmer's Diary: "A Poor Bargain."

HIGH on a hill to the east, stood an abandoned house and barn. Yesterday a realtor took a young GI, his wife and two young children out to see the place. I saw them, passing by.

Often I had been there and looked in at the open windows . . . caught the peculiar odor of agedness; the abandoned hints of the people who had lived there many years. When I spoke or whistled, the echo rolled through the vacant rooms. Five rooms and a kitchen beneath a porch roof. The wooden pump had rotted—leafy fruiting grapevines trailed across the rotting planks above the old dug well.

Only in spring and early summer was water present. A deep wide cistern had been more recently dug at one corner of the house. Only one barn was well kept, of all the buildings.

The farm was atop the hill, 60 acres of fenceless fields. But on every slope little gullies had started, and washed down into the bed of shale. All across the impoverished fields, great colonies of stunted wild lettuce grew.

I had found out, by inquiry, that the man of middle age who moved off that farm, had a sickly wife and three puny children. The livestock they had was ailing, too—and not until they moved into another neighborhood did they begin to prosper.

I knew this young GI. He had been in my class at school, several years ago . . . his young wife was a student three years later. I was concerned. The following day they drove in to see me, and I was very glad.

"We went to see a farm out here a piece," he began at once. "The real estate man showed us where you lived. We're sick of living with her folks. We're just dying to get to ourselves again. Anything's better than no home at all" . . . he told me the price.

"We could at least live there and get to town in the car anytime. And we could live off the land . . . of course you know we don't have any experience on a farm . . . what do you think of the prospect?"

"I don't like to tell you," I admitted, "but still I'm glad you asked me. I want to do you good. That rundown land you looked over yesterday would be poison to you and your young family. It is farmed out and washed away, until whatever you would grow would be stunted, too. If you ate the things you raised, you'd be apt to suffer from malnutrition. You couldn't keep farm animals without better land . . . they'd get ailing, too. If you knew how to farm and improve the land, your adventure would have a different color. But that takes awhile to learn.

"Why not rent a vacant house—even that one, if you can get it . . . and after a year of country life and study and becoming acquainted with rural neighbors, see how well you like it. Save your money until prices come down."

THE NEIGHBORS ARE DISGUSTED

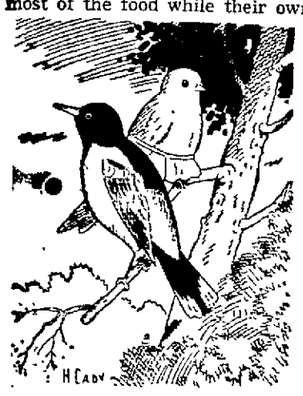
What'er you do be very sure
The neighbors all will talk it o'er.
—Old Mother Nature.

There was talk in the Old Orchard. There was talk on the Green Meadows. There was talk in the Old Pasture and even along the edge of the Green Forest.

"I hear Sally Sly has done it again," said Goldie the Oriole to Mrs. Goldie as he brought some food for the growing babies in the wonderfully woven nest hanging from the tip of a gracefully bent long limb high in an elm tree near the Old Orchard.

"What has she done?" asked Mrs. Goldie, too busy with the babies to be paying much attention to anything else.

"The same old thing—left an egg in the nest of Redeye the Vireo just as she did last year. We'll probably see repeated the same disgusting sight we saw then, a big young Cowbird getting most of the food while their own



"What can they do?" asked Goldie.

babies go hungry," replied Goldie.

"She wouldn't play that trick on me twice," declared Mrs. Goldie. "Why don't the Redeyes do something about it?"

"What can they do?" asked Goldie.

"They can throw that egg out of the nest. That is what I would do," declared Mrs. Goldie and there was no doubt in Goldie's mind that she meant it.

"Perhaps they are afraid to try, fearing they might accidentally throw out one of their own eggs," said Goldie. "You know her eggs are bigger than their's," he added.

"Then why don't they peck a hole in it and spoil it before there is time for it to hatch?" retorted Mrs. Goldie.

"Don't ask me," replied Goldie. "I guess they are just too softhearted. I hear Mrs. Robin found one of Sally Sly's eggs in her nest and threw it out. I wonder who else has been imposed on by that good-for-nothing Cowbird."

"She and her kind should be driven out of the neighborhood whenever they are seen," declared Mrs. Goldie.

"The trouble is she isn't often seen. If she is seen she slips out of sight before anything can be done about her. She and her kind are a disgrace to the whole neighborhood," Goldie declared as he prepared to go look for more food to drop into those ever-open mouths in the nest.

There was much the same feeling among all the other neighbors, indignation for Sally Sly, sympathy and disgust for the Redeyes, mostly disgust. This feeling increased when the eggs hatched and it was plain to every one that Sally Sly's youngster was getting most of the food while the four baby Redeyes were going hungry, not getting nearly enough food to grow properly.

"I'm sorry for those two Vireos. Goodness knows it is enough of a job to bring up four children of one's own without having to care for a stranger," said Mrs. Scrapper the Kingbird."

"Then what do they do it for? Why don't they get rid of him, refuse to feed him, do something to show they won't be imposed upon? That youngster wouldn't stay in our nest two minutes after I found him there," said Scrapper, who is just about as fearless a person as any who wears feathers.

"Have you noticed how that young Cowbird is growing?" said Kitty the Catbird.

"Why shouldn't he grow? He gets most of the food. I've seen him snatch it right out of the mouths of the others. He hatched first and that gave him a start on the others. He was bigger anyway and so stronger. Still if I were their mother I would find some way of feeding my babies first and giving him the leftovers. The Redeyes ought to be ashamed of themselves," said Mrs. Kitty.

Chippy the Chipping Sparrow shook his small head with its dusset cap. "They are doing the best they can," said he. "Mr. Chippy and I know all about it. We have been through the same thing once. You just can't let a helpless baby starve to death. We did our best to feed our own babies first, but that young Cowbird was so much bigger and stronger than our own babies that in spite of all we could do he got most of the food. He could reach right over the others and would snatch the food from our bills before we could get it into any other open mouth."

"They should find some way. It is disgusting. A disgrace to the neighborhood," persisted Kitty.

The next story: "Simply Dreadful."

Barclay On Bridge

THERE ARE two extremely contrasting types of opening leads, when considered from the broadest standpoint. One is conservative and the other venturesome. Whether to favor one of these or the other depends on many circumstances. but especially the kind of bidding which has been done. If the declarer seems to be in a contract which is likely to be difficult to make, you should lean toward care to prevent giving him the trick which may make his project successful. But if he and his partner did bidding which makes the contract seem very safe against normal defense, your job in rubber contract is to become aggressive — or should the word be offensive?—to strive for some trick which would not come without conscious effort on your part.

That bidding sounded awful strong to West, as if the contract probably would be easy to make unless radical steps were taken at once. As to whether he was right or wrong, just notice what would have occurred if West had made any of his three possible conservative leads — his heart 7 to cut down ruffs by declarer's side in such a perfectly-fitting situation as this seemed to be, or the fourth-best card of either minor. If any of those leads had been made, the declarer would quickly have driven out the trump A, then the last two trumps, so that he could have lost nothing but a trick each in spades, hearts and clubs.

But West struck a blow for his own side, taking a risk—justifiable in the premises — of setting up an honor for South. He led his spade A and followed with the 3, in the hope that his partner would either win that or else manage to stop trumps on the first round. That latter hope was realized. When East got in with his heart A at the third trick, he returned a third spade for West to ruff. Gaining that trick fixed the side so that the later club K trick beat the contract.

ASHLAND, Mo.—(AP)—For 10 days E. V. Anderson searched for his three fine fox hounds. The search ended at a deserted well, eight or ten feet deep, which had been rocked-up. The imprisonment failed to harm the dogs, but the fox which had preceded them into the well was a mere pile of well picked bones by the time the dogs were discovered.

Try and Stop Me

A Tony Park Avenue matron went to Cartier's to buy a solid gold drinking bowl for her prize Pomeranian. She toyed with the idea of adorning it with the inscription "For the Dog" in diamonds, but finally rejected it.

"I guess it would be silly," she confided to the clerk. "After all, my husband never drinks water and the dog can't read."

The scientist who discovered the menace of bacteria in the gentle art of kissing back in the Gay Nineties provoked a characteristic outburst in William C. Brann, the fiery Texan editor of The Iconoclast.

"Here in Texas," he thundered, "we take our kisses with the peeling or we go without. We've got our hands full buttering up the maiden without bothering about the bacteria. Let those gloomy scientists with their doublegeared microscopes croak what they may, the man who gets a chance to buss a corn-fed Texas beauty whose breath is sweet as that of a brindle calf fed on clover blooms doesn't have to give a darn for any fool bacilli."

Sen. Ball Predicts Congress Will Vote Legislation to Halt National Tie-ups.

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Proposals embracing a new, over-all government labor policy designed to reduce the threat of national tieups by industry-wide strikes will be laid before congress when it returns, Senator Ball (R-Minn), said today.

Ball told a reporter that with the help of colleagues of like views he intends to draft during the legislative vacation a rounded program he believes a Democratic-Republican coalition will support.

He said this program will be based on the following major points:

1. Strengthening of federal mediation machinery.

2. Establishing of equal responsibility under the law for unions and management.

3. Amending of the Wagner Act to define unfair practices by unions, to ban coercion of individual workers, to modify the closed shop section, to require the labor board to act on the weight of evidence in any case and to provide that unions as well as employers must bargain collectively.

4. Substitution of another set of controls for the government seizure now employed to combat breakdowns in the national economy when industry-wide strikes go unsettled.

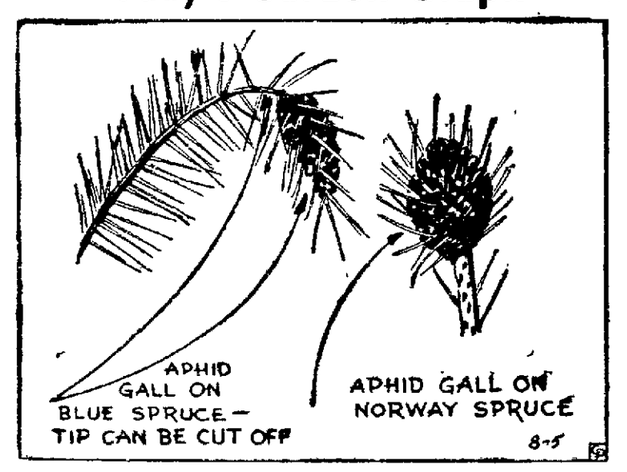
Ball said he thinks that after the November elections congressional support for an extensive revision of the labor laws will be strong enough to enact changes in the law despite any president opposition. President Truman vetoed the Case bill in which the 69th congress attacked the problem, and his disapproval was upheld.

Very Useful Art In These Times

SEATTLE —(U.P.)— First-graders in the Magnolia Grammer school are learning something that some parents may think more important than reading, writing and arithmetic. The children are learning how to make butter.

In a project that extended over a 10-week period, the first-graders learned about cows, farms and farmers and wound up by actually making their own butter in glass jars.

Today's Garden-Graph



Inspect Now for Aphid Galls in Spruce Trees

AT THIS time of the year the careful gardener checks both Colorado blue spruce as well as the Norway spruce trees on the home grounds for infestations of the aphid gall.

The spruce aphid gall is sort of cone-shaped and the inexperienced gardener is apt to take it as part of the natural growth of the tree.

The galls on Colorado blue spruce will generally be found at the very tips of the branches, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. When the galls are so situated, the tip of the infected branch can be snipped off. It does not take much work to clean up an ordinary sized blue spruce if it is found to be infected.

Aphid galls on Norway spruce are pineapple-shaped, as illustrated, and green in color when they first form. In August, they turn a yellowish-brown. They are usually found at the junction of the twigs. Because of their situation it is often difficult to cut them out. They do no great harm in one year but if left uncontrolled over a long period will kill the branches one by one and eventually the tree.

At this time of the year some measure of control can be obtained by spraying infected spruce trees with a nicotine and fish oil and soap solution. Infected trees can also be sprayed for this pest in early spring.

The same aphid which is responsible for the formation of spruce galls also spends part of its busy life on Douglas fir trees. If you have plantings of these trees it will be well to inspect them. On Douglas firs, the aphids produce a smaller, darker-colored gall.

Instruction For Lagging Children

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

Many a child who lagged in school last year could profit from instruction during the long summer months. If, fortunately, a public summer school is available, he might well attend as an opportunity, but not as punishment.

Some parents could give good instruction at home, provided they can be very calm and patient and stick to a schedule. But most parents will neither discipline themselves to follow a schedule nor manage their emotions well when they desire to help the child on school work. The smartest parent may be a poor teacher of his or her own child. Usually it is better for a child to attend summer school or to have a tutor (for individual instruction) at regular periods.

The trouble is that most parents put so low value on the need of the child who lags at books that these parents are not willing to pay enough to secure the services of a good tutor. Few parents would want to pay a tutor as good wages as they pay a laundress or maid.

While these labor services are honorable and hardly over-paid, as a rule, a good tutor must have spent much time and money in her preparation. Besides, the services rendered by her and the value to the child are so much higher and so much more enduring.

Thousands of parents whose children need special help at booklearning this summer could afford to have excellent tutors for them. Most other costs would be relatively unimportant. Consider the many children who, with proper help this summer could go on successfully at school next year, even make up a grade, perhaps, which they otherwise would have to repeat. For some of these children, the ultimate reward in happiness and life-success would be immeasurable.

The local principal should be able to give good advice on the selection of a tutor. Sometimes a high school student is an excellent tutor. A certain lad in his junior year at high school succeeded, in only twelve lessons, at helping a sophomore pass his final test in chemistry after he had been failing all the term.

Obviously, many a high school and college student, if he is willing to study hard, could profit greatly from the help of a tutor during the summer. With colleges so crowded now, students who don't make good at college will be readily dismissed.

One problem is that most children, regardless of age, who have lagged at books, have lacked good habits of regular application. Not much sense, of course, in providing a tutor for any child who cannot be won or forced to do his part.

For the parent or tutor trying to help the lagging child, or for the laggard himself, my special bulletins might prove helpful. These bulletins include "Home Helps on Spelling, Arithmetic and Reading (Part I and II)," each to be had in a stamped envelope.

NO SOAP? DON'T BLAME YOUR GROCER!

He's just as tired of saying "no" as you are of asking for soap. Don't blame the government or the soap manufacturers, either. Until we get enough industrial fats to make all the soaps and other peacetime products we need, there's only one thing to do..!

Save More Used Fats

Every drop of used fat you save is urgently needed. Every pound of used fats helps make about two pounds of the soaps you need. You use soap every day...so save used fats every day. Get 4¢ for every pound.

Where there's fat- there's soap
